Event : Celebration of 102nd Birthday of the Living Legend Prof. C.R. RAO

Date:10-09-2023

Venue:St Anns College for Women Mehdiapatnam, Hyderabad

Target Audience: B.Sc. (MSCS & MSDS)

Guest Speaker: V. V.Haragopal

The event "102nd birthday Prof. C. R. Rao" was organised by Sigma Club, Department of Statistics.

Brief Report:

A guest lecture was given by V.V Haragopal on 'Analytics through Textual Data Mining'. Sir has shared his valuable knowledge on Data Mining started with a brief introduction to analyzing data and the various methods to go about it.

The information was very helpful & beneficial. Data Analysis is the practice of working with data to glean useful information, which can then be used to make informed decisions and also help forecast the future of a company or product.

A few of the main points Sir discussed and explained through a case study of the transcripts of political speeches of five politicians at a given time and the difference in their content.

Dr. V. V. Haragopal also spoke about the importance of the contribution of the younger generation to the field of Statistics, he also shared a few ideas for the students to start working on their own mini-projects.

This was then followed by the Quiz which had a final number of six teams of two students each who had been selected after a Screening Round.

The Quiz had three rounds consisting of the Initial Round, Jigsaw Round & Riddle Round and Rapid-Fire Round.

Then the JAM Session was started on Statistical topics judged by Dr. V. V. Haragopal. All participants were given two minutes time to think about the topic they had picked from a bowl and then had a minute to speak on it.

All in all, all students and participants had a great time and had a chance to expand and share their knowledge and ideas on Statistics with each other and the faculty.

23. Herne Bay Steamboat Co. v/s Hutton - 1903

A Royal naval review was planned to take place in September in 1902. The plaintiff and the defendant agreed in writing that the plaintiff's steamship Cynthia would be at the defendant's disposal on 28 and 29 June to take passengers from Harlow for the purposes of viewing the naval review and for a day's cruise around the Reel. This was subject to a specified deposit and rental fee. On signing of the agreement the defendant paid the deposit. On 25 June, the review was cancelled. The plaintiff contacted the defendant for instructions and informed him that the ship was ready to start and they demanded a payment. The plaintiff received no reply so they decided to use the ship for their own purposes on 28 and 29 June and made a profit from the two days. On 29 June, the defendant repudiated the contract in writing. The plaintiff took an action against the defendant to recover the balance for the two days of the cruise. The plaintiff sought a profit from the two days. Were the plaintiffs entitled to recover the rent due for the two days despite the fact that Royal naval review was cancelled? The decision was in favor of the plaintiff. The plaintiff was entitled to recover the rent arrears since:

(1) the venture was the defendant's and therefore, the risk was his alone.
 (2) the taking place of the Royal naval review was not the sole basis of the contract, so there had been no total destruction of the subject matter of the contract. It was held further that the contract did not operate as a result of the demise of the ship.

17. Collins v/s Godfrey - 1834

The defendant, brought an action against an attorney for negligence and caused Collins, the plaintiff, to be subpoenaed to attend and give evidence. Godfrey was keen to ensure that Collins attended as this would help his case, so he promised to pay him one guinea per day he was at court as compensation for the loss of his time. Collins attended court for six days but was not called to give evidence. At the end of this Collins demanded payment of six guineas, as per the agreement. When this was not paid, he brought an action against the defendant for the sum owing. The question for the court was whether the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant was supported by valuable consideration. The court held that the agreement that the plaintiff should attend court was not supported by valuable consideration. This was because the plaintiff was under a public duty to attend court anyway having been subpoenaed. The law would not allow someone to recover expenses incurred in the performance of a duty that they were obliged to do anyway by law. Lord Tenterden said (at 958): "It is a duty imposed by law upon a party to give remuneration for duty is imposed!"

TARGET GROUP: BBA I

DATE:15/10/2022

TIME: 10:00AM

"Quick space" was conducted for the BBA first year students by Equinox Club. Activity was about the various brands, logos etc of organizations with a part of it being missing or faded for students to guess a set of questions curated to test their general knowledge about certain well-known brands. Each student had to guess the name of the company either from a set of images/emojis or with the help of their famous ad tunes; all within a time span of 45 seconds.

The activity was an effective icebreaker in helping them get comfortable with each other in the college.

2. Dr. Toorkey – Head , Dept of Chemistry
3. Mr. Abu Bakar – Associate Chemistry Faculty
4. Mr. Ameer – Associate Biology Faculty
5. Mr. Hyder – Project Coordinator
- 6.

Around 300 students of various disciplines actively participated in Live show experiencing the amazing and hidden facts of Chemistry.

The Show was telecasted on Zoom enabling participants to experience wonders in Chemistry.

All the experiments were demonstrated with active involvement of students on Stage using Over Head Projector.

The experiments performed using OHP were made visible on the digital screen for the audience to understand the concepts easily.

The experiments were interesting igniting the spark to learn chemistry.

The Immense support extended by Team ILM Foundation was highly appreciated.
